Grant Writing Workshop at the 2018 West Virginia Brownfield Conference

NJIT TAB partnered with EPA Region 3, the West Virginia Brownfields Assistance Center, and the West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection (WVDEP) in designing and holding a Grant Writing Workshop at the 2018 West Virginia Brownfields Conference in Charleston on September 5, 2018.

The Brownfield Grant Writing Workshop was presented as an expert's guide for preparing successful multipurpose, assessment, and cleanup (MAC) grant proposals. During the workshop, NJIT TAB presented tips on how to write a winning grant proposal. The workshop included: an overview of the EPA grant application processes; a presentation of a grant proposal to-do list; steps that potential applicants could presently be undertaking to position themselves for success; and, helpful tips and tricks for winning grant proposals.

In addition, attendees were provided with an update and summary of the Brownfield Utilization, Investment and Local Development Act (BUILD) changes which will be implemented in FY 2019.

The workshop was attended by approximately 30 people representing communities from Virginia and West Virginia, most of which are potential first time applicants.

In addition, NJIT TAB provided one-on-one expert advice during the grant writing roundtable.
